Adam W. Hamm was appointed Insurance Commissioner by Governor John Hoeven in October 2007. Hamm brings a strong and varied background to the office that includes experience both in public service and in the private sector. Hamm's dedication and desire to serve the public was in part born out of his experiences at the Cass County State's Attorney's office. Hamm worked on the personal crimes team which prosecutes, among other things, murder, rape, robbery, assault, and child physical and sexual abuse. Seeking justice for victims and their families gave Hamm a special appreciation for public service and a keen insight into what it takes to protect the public.

Among the cases he handled during his time as a prosecutor was the prosecution of Kyle Bell for the murder of Jeanna North, an 11-year-old Fargo girl. This case ultimately resulted in a life sentence for Bell, but just as importantly, prompted the enactment of tougher laws against sex offenders in North Dakota.

Hamm has also worked as an attorney in private practice advocating for North Dakota businesses and individuals. He specialized in a number of areas, including commercial litigation, administrative agency law and transportation law.

Hamm, 36, is a graduate of Sam Houston State University and received his Juris Doctorate Degree, with Distinction, from the University of North Dakota School of Law in 1998. He is a member of the State Bar Associations of North Dakota and Minnesota, and the Cass County Bar Association. Hamm is also a member of the Governor's Task Force on Violent and Sexual Offenders. Within the community, Hamm served for the last four years on the New Member Development Committee of the Home Builders Association of Fargo-Moorhead, most recently as its Vice-Chair. A native of Jamestown, North Dakota, Commissioner Hamm has lived and worked in the Fargo area since 1998. He is currently in the process of relocating to Bismarck.

Dr. Bob Edwards is a native of the south. He came to Minot, North Dakota to direct the ministry of the Samaritan Counseling Center/Trinity Mental Health. He served as the director for seven years. He is currently the Senior Pastor at First Presbyterian Church. He has served in the military, has been a corporate vice president for marketing, established many Christ based therapy programs, served as a psychiatric chaplain and private therapist, and is a proud survivor of fourteen North Dakota winters.

He was named Healthcare Provider of the Year, Region II North Dakota in 1998 and was received into the Who's Who for Public Speaking. He is a devoted pet lover, a singer, author, lecturer, humorist, radio talk show host, and the proud father of five precious children, most recently a set of twins who are six years old.

Dr. Edwards holds a doctorate in psychology and counseling, is a certified suicide specialist, state licensed therapist, and is a nationally certified marriage and family therapist. Welcome, from the south (now a Minotia
